JUNE 2013

Equity Market Overview

The Nifty Index ended the month on a positive note, registering a gain of 0.9%, while the BSE Sensex gained 1.31% during the month.

India's gross domestic product (GDP) for Q4FY13 grew at 4.8% in line with expectations with full year FY13 growth at a decade low of 5% vs. 6.2% in FY12. The manufacturing sector grew by 2.6% compared to a four quarter average of 0.5%. The deceleration of growth in agriculture was partially offset by an improvement in industry and services sector growth.

The IIP for Mar'13 came in at 2.5% vs. 0.5% for Feb'13, driven by good performance in manufacturing sector and intermediate goods. WPI inflation eased to 4.89% in April from 6% in March. Moderation was witnessed across segments including core, food and fuel. Even the CPI inflation decelerated to 9.4% in April, down from 10.4% in March. Since inflation has ebbed and remained within the comfort zone, RBI cut the repo rate by 25bps to 7.25%, for the third time since January '13. The CRR was left unchanged at 4%.

Among the major BSE indices, the BSE IT index gained the highest (up by 6.2%), followed by the BSE communication technology index (up 3.7%) and the BSE consumer durables index (up 3.5%). The BSE Realty index lost the most (down by 11.4%) while the BSE Cap Goods index was down by 3.2%.

Across the globe, the markets witnessed high volatility as the US Fed hinted towards reversal of its quantitative easing program. Shanghai gained the highest, with a 5.6% rise during the month, followed by the Nasdaq (gain of 3.82%). The Hang Seng lost 1.5% and the Nikkei lost 0.6%.

Fixed Income Overview

Renewed concerns on discontinuation of Quantitative Easing by major central banks caused outflow of 'hot money' from emerging markets and led to depreciation of corresponding currencies. China manufacturing PMI for May came in at 49.6, signaling increasing growth sluggishness in the world's fastest growing major economy. The momentum of the US economy continues to hinge around ambiguous data.

Domestically, the annual results season of companies was a mixed bag, with most sectors, including even the traditionally buoyant IT, reflecting bleak sentiments.

Headline inflation for April fell sharply to 4.89% from 5.96%, the lowest level since November 2009, with a inflation in food articles down to 6.1% v/s 8.7% in March. Core inflation further eased to 2.8% from 3.5%. Fuel and power inflation also declined to 8.8% v/s 10.2%. With steep fall in food items, CPI is also expected to fall. The only worrying data point is the substantial revisions to previous estimates with Feb inflation this time revised to 7.28% from 6.84%.

Crude prices averaged $103/barrel through the month, while Rupee recorded a sharp, one-sided depreciation from 53.8/$ to 56.5/$ on worsening Current Account Deficit. The consequent increase in energy costs and accompanying risks to fiscal deficit numbers is an overhang on global sentiment towards India.

Systemic liquidity further eased going into May, as LAF deficit fell to Rs.70000 crores towards the end of the month with Government paying subsidies of ~Rs.45000 crores to Oil Marketing Companies. The new 10-year G-sec benchmark came in at 7.16% and moved up to 7.24% on FII selling pressure after hawkish comments by the RBI Governor. Certificates of Deposit yields were range bound between 8.00-8.10% through the month.

How the RBI, in its policy on June 17, negotiates the tight-rope walk on fiscal consolidation, growth-friendliness, currency risk and inflation pressures, remains to be seen.
