b. Future Outlook:

Equity market outlook:

We reiterate our assessment that the outlook for financial markets is quite sanguine over the next 3-5 years made in our previous annual report. The broad market (Sensex) declined by ~10% in FY16 after the 18.5% rise in FY14 and ~25% rise in FY16, likely reflecting a pause in the general positive trend.

The judgment of healthy returns on a tax-adjusted basis from equity markets is based on a medium term view of Indian economy and our understanding of market cycles. Indian economy experienced one of the best periods of economic growth starting early 2000s—Indian economy grew by ~5X between FY00-12 in nominal terms. This phenomenal growth of the past decade led to cyclical pressures in terms of higher inflation, deterioration in external balances, stretched balance sheets both in the corporate and banking sector etc. and more importantly brought to the fore the structural changes required to be made by the Indian economy to grow for the next decade and beyond. India has made steady progress towards addressing these challenges since the past few years. The correction in international commodity prices provides additional headroom for the country to grow and correct its imbalances.

Government initiatives to put in place a transparent process for allocation of real resources, deregulation of diesel prices, commitment towards fiscal rectitude and enactment of the bankruptcy code are good efforts to correct the structural challenges facing the economy. Enhanced government spends on infrastructure and reduction in the number of stuck projects will eventually lead to better cash flows for companies.

All economic booms typically result in overleveraged balance sheets in non-financial and/or financial sectors. This period is then followed by de-leveraging in the non-financial sector and consolidation and write-offs in the financial sector. Indian economy is currently witnessing all these trends and we have been almost 5 years since this phenomenon set in. This process reached a cinematic end in FY16 with RBI carrying out an asset quality review (AQR) for banks and asking them to make higher provisioning for 'weaker' assets. This has improved the transparency of bank balance sheets, forced banks to make concerted efforts at resolving their NPLs. All these should be positive over a period of time. A silver lining for the overleveraged balance sheets has been the high inflation during the past few years, which has effectively reduced debt burden for companies (unlike the western economies) but this has come at the cost of savers.

RBI's tight monetary stance over the few years, where the broad money supply (M3) has grown at ~12% CAGR between 2011-16 against a 20-year average of ~17% CAGR, has played a role in the moderation of inflationary pressures and resulted in better real returns for savers. We expect the inflationary pressures to remain moderate by better policy (both fiscal and monetary) and softer commodity prices.

Equity market valuations are close to their historical valuations and corporate profitability remaining below the historical levels. An important factor favoring the investors is that risk averseness is quite high among corporate, banking sectors and investor community given the experience of the past 8 years (since the great financial crisis of 2008). This significantly reduces the probability of permanent loss of capital, though there could be heightened gyrations in stock markets (as witnessed in FY16). These factors are likely to help deliver healthy returns for investors over the medium term on a tax-adjusted basis. Investors are advised to use the corrections to buy into equities and create wealth for themselves over the medium term.
