b. Future Outlook:

Outlook for equity markets:

Outlook for financial markets can be expected to be quite sanguine for FY2015-16 and our assessment is based on a medium term view of Indian economy and understanding of market cycles. Indian economy experienced one of the best periods of economic growth starting early 2000s—Indian economy grew by ~5X between FY00-12 in nominal terms. This phenomenal growth of the past decade led to cyclical pressures in terms of higher inflation, deterioration in external balances etc. and more importantly brought to the fore the structural changes required to be made by the Indian economy to grow for the next decade and beyond. India has made steady progress towards addressing these challenges since the past few years and the election of a new Central government with clear mandate in 2014 increases the probability of resolution of these issues. The recent correction in commodity prices provides additional headroom for the country to grow and correct its imbalances.

Recent government initiatives for allocating real resources, deregulation of diesel prices and enhanced spends on capex without compromising on fiscal discipline are good efforts to correct the challenges facing the economy. Thrust on completing stuck projects, reducing the bottlenecks is likely to ease cash flows for corporates and lead to an improved growth rate for the economy. Union Budget for 2015-16 had an innovative idea of setting up National Investment and Infrastructure Fund (NIIF) to leverage budgetary resources and fund infrastructure through the off-balance sheet route. Successful implementation of this idea has the potential to kick-start the capital investment cycle in India.

All economic booms typically result in overleveraged balance sheets in non-financial and/or financial sectors. This period is then followed by de-leveraging in the non-financial sector and consolidation and write-offs in the financial sector. Indian economy is currently witnessing all these trends and we have been almost 4 years since this phenomenon set in. A silver lining for the overleveraged balance sheets has been the high inflation during the past few years, which has effectively reduced debt burden for companies (unlike the western economies) but this has come at the cost of savers.

RBI's tight monetary stance over the few years, where the broad money supply (M3) has grown at ~13% CAGR between 2011-15 against a 20-year average of ~17% CAGR, has played a role in the moderation of inflationary pressures and resulted in better real returns for savers. Debt markets have already seen the impact of lower inflation, with the benchmark 10-year Gsec yield falling by ~90 bps in CY2014. We expect the moderation in inflationary pressures to persist aided by better policy (both fiscal and monetary) and softer commodity prices.

Equity market valuations are close to their historical valuations despite the strong run-up of the previous year and corporate profitability remaining below the historical levels. These factors are likely to help deliver healthy returns for investors over the medium term (over a 3-5 year period) on a tax-adjusted basis. Investors are advised to use the corrections to buy into equities and create wealth for themselves over the medium term.
